

FEAR FIFTY GIRLS MET TRAGIC DEATH IN FACTORY FIRE

REVISED LIST OF DEAD IN BINGHAMPTON DISASTER INDICATES MANY BODIES LIE IN RUINS.

CAUSE FOR LIFE LOSS

Was Due to the Fact That Employees Believed They Were Merely Holding a Fire Drill—Property Loss Heavy.

Binghampton, N. Y., July 23.—At daybreak today a big force of city employees began to search for the dead entombed beneath the smoldering ruins of the overall factory of the Binghampton Clothing company. Not until the tangled mass of brick and steel has been removed will the full extent of yesterday's tragedy be known.

Conservative estimates place the number of dead at more than fifty. About one hundred twenty-five employees, mostly women and girls were trapped in the burning walls. Of these only forty-one are known to have escaped. Sixteen charred bodies are yet unidentified. The identified dead are: Nellie Connor, Sydney Dimmick, Mary Cregan, Miss Fulmer, Louise Hartwell, Mrs. Alvin White, Mary Prior. The injured include: Esther Rashkin, Mrs. Mae Leighton, Mrs. Charles Croft, Mrs. Mary Bennett, Charles Constance, Mrs. Ida Houghtaling, Jared Orr, Mrs. Ida Prentiss, Mrs. Margaret Quick.

The list of the one hundred thirty-four employees, the majority of whom were on vacation, is in the safe under the ruins, making the task of compiling the list of dead more difficult.

The loss of fire and water to the building and stocks of five concerns is estimated at more than $200,000, largely covered by insurance.

The postoffice built about twenty years ago was badly damaged. Last night the mails were saved. A temporary office has been established in a nearby garage.

The loss of the Binghampton Clothing Company, of which Reed B. Freeman is president, is estimated at about $400,000, all covered by insurance. This does not include the building, which was rented.

The heavy loss of life is believed to have been largely due to the fact that the employees thought they were holding a fire drill. The fire started in the upper floors for clothing and valuables.

The flames spread rapidly and the intensity of the heat prevented the firemen from getting within fighting range of the building. The fire was impossible. Women and girls too weak to go farther, dropped exhausted on the single fire escape in the rear of the building and literally roasted to death. Portions of the bodies dropped into the streets. Others jumped and were killed. Half a dozen of the panic-stricken girls standing on the fourth floor. A moment later they tumbled to their death.

Only the efficiency of the Binghampton fire department prevented the spread of the flames to business blocks lining Water street between Court and Henry streets. In the building, which was a large amount of highly explosive chemicals. Steel doors and shutters prevented the fire from reaching this building. Voluntary firemen employed in the hours along the line of the fire, who were in the city for their annual tournament aided the local firemen.

In holiday clothes they assisted in running lines of hose to the tops of the burning buildings. The band concert scheduled for last night was abandoned.

Reed B. Freeman, president of the Binghampton Clothing Company, estimated that there were 125 employees in the building when the fire started. Eighty percent of the girls employed were Americans.

"When the alarm sounded," said Mr. Freeman, "most of the girls took the time to get their hats and coats, and others to get their purses and other belongings. But for this fact I believe nearly all would have been saved. In the last fire drill we had the building emptied in twenty minutes."

According to the officials of the Binghampton Clothing Company all the fire laws had been observed. Fire drills had been held at regular intervals and the building was safe. It is the theory of President Freeman that a lighted cigarette thrown into a heap of rubbish shortly after the lunch hour was the cause of the disaster.

Fire Chief Hogg, as he left the ruins early today to get a few hours' sleep, declared that in his opinion the fire escape was adequate.

"They simply withered from the heat when they got to it."

The building was a four story brick structure, 44 feet wide by 130 long. It was built eighteen years ago as a cigar factory. The first escape was at the rear. There were two stairways in the top floor, one to Center street at the rear and the other to Wall street at the front. The interior of the building was divided into two floors. The offices and stock rooms were located on the first floor, but most of the operatives were working on the third and fourth floors. The doors of the building were open at the time the fire started and a draught of wind which contributed to the rapid spread of the flames.

A fund for the survivors has been started.

Revised list of the dead and missing reported up to noon today as follows: Mary Prior, Wilkesbarre; John E. Schoemaker, Philadelphia; Margaret Diamond, Mrs. Thomas Doran, Ida Golden, Nellie Gleason, Mrs. Anna Gleason, Louise Hartman, Lena Kennedy, Louise Shelp, Catherine Sullivan, Mrs. Pillmer, Louise Hartwell, Mary Smith, Nellie Connor, Sydney Dimmick, Bessie Ray, Mary Sullivan, Miss Crockett, Catherine Crowe, John Schermerhorn, Mrs. Hattie Freeman, Helen Westler, Mrs. Sarah Doran, Miss Button, Miss T. Lakey, and Mrs. Ida Prentiss.

A LOBBYIST MEASURE PASSES THE SENATE

Bars Put Up on Men Who Seek to Influence Legislators by Vote of Upper House

AMENDMENTS TO TARIFF MEASURE TAKEN UP TODAY

Senators, Democrats, and Republicans Are Not Ready to Discuss Tariff Bill—Amendments Are Taken Up Section by Section.

Washington, July 23.—With no senator, democrat or republican ready to speak on the tariff bill the senate today took up the measure section by section for amendment. No democratic speeches had been made since the debate opened last Friday except Senator Simmons' formal statement in behalf of the democrats of the finance committee. The republicans offered no opposition today to consideration of the bill section by section. Senators Weeks, Borah, Townsend and Woodall republicans, are expected to make general speeches this week.

The reading clerk had not read four lines of the bill before the first conflict between democrats and republicans arose over the prohibition of the committee amendment reducing the house rates on oxalic acid, was adopted by 50 to 26 on the first roll call of the senate fight. Senators Borah, Brister, Crawford, Cummins, Jones, Norris, Underhill, La Follette and Works voted with the democrats. Republican Leader Mann again filibustered the house into an adjournment today. As the climax to a series of parliamentary delay he forced the senate to adjourn for the day. Democratic Leader Underwood's motion to adjourn.

WILL RUSH READING OF MULHALL PAPERS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Lobby Quiz Board Expects to Finish Inspection of Documents by Tomorrow—MacVeagh Dubbed a "Mugwump."

Washington, July 23.—With three-fifths of the Mulhall letters in the record the senate lobby committee today hurried along in an effort to finish the reading by tomorrow. The committee decided to expedite things as much as possible by putting scores of letters in the record without specific identification.

In answer to a blanket question by Senator Reed, Mulhall swore to the authenticity of the whole correspondence turned over to the committee.

Former Secretary MacVeagh was dubbed a mugwump in a letter from former representative Watson to Mulhall on September 18, 1909. Watson charged Mulhall with being a "mugwump" and a "mugwump" in a letter from former representative Watson to Mulhall on September 18, 1909. Watson charged Mulhall with being a "mugwump" and a "mugwump" in a letter from former representative Watson to Mulhall on September 18, 1909.

REFUSE TO UNCLAMP STRICT SALOON LAW

State Assembly Refuses to Allow Milwaukee Council to License Hotels and Modify Sunday Law.

Madison, Wis., July 23.—The assembly went on record again today against introduction of a bill which would permit the common council of Milwaukee to grant liquor licenses to hotels of more than eighty rooms. By a vote of 52 to 35 the house refused to suspend the rules, a two-thirds vote failing. The measure was offered by Assemblyman Heading of Milwaukee. The assembly refused to throw down the bars by modifying the statutes relating to Sunday closing. Don C. Hall, the actor legislator, asked permission to introduce a bill to amend section 4555 relating to the first day of the week providing that portion of the so-called blue law place diversions be stricken out.

On the question of suspending the rules to permit its introduction there were 50 votes for the measure and 39 against it.

Assemblyman Hall made a spirited speech in behalf of his bill. He said the state was enacting laws so drastic, so oppressive to personal freedom, that the laws would not be accepted by the people.

The Boshart bill providing that the term of office of the state banking commissioner appointed in June of this year shall expire on May 5, 1918 was passed.

After ten today the assembly took up for consideration the water power bill but no vote had been taken on it when the house adjourned at noon. The senate today evoked all the available messages were dispatched to all absent senators to return at once, as it is desired to wind up all the business of the session in the session in the senate by the end of this week.

WILDCAT BANKING IS CAUSE OF ARGUMENT

Cunningham Bill Passed to Third Reading in the Assembly—Both Houses Buoy.

Madison, Wis., July 23.—The prevention of "wildcat" promotion of banking in this state was urged by advocates in the senate last night of the Guidice bill. It was ordered to third reading, 16 to 5, after a long debate in which Senator Hastings of Dodge county, second in command of the "wildcat" promotion, which, as he said, makes the commissioner of banking the "sole arbiter" whether a new bank may be chartered or not. An amendment to cut out this section and another striking through the requirement of endorsement of the incorporators by three of the village or city officials both offered by Hastings, were rejected.

The provision requiring this test of qualifications also was opposed by Senator Burke.

The principal arguments for the bill were made by Senators Boshart and Kilgus.

The bill requires five instead of three incorporators of a new bank, and they must file an endorsement as above noted. The commissioner of banking shall determine the need of a new bank in a given community. He shall require a statement of the financial standing of the stockholders. They are to be under double liability for losses. The cashier and other officers in authority must have had prior experience before authorizing the opening of a bank.

Senator Burke sought to introduce a bill to permit the state forestry board to take options on certain lands with a view to their purchase later, after the expiration of the limit of purchase fixed by the Guidice bill. Senator Perry objected and the effort failed. Senator Boshart also sought in vain to introduce a bill to abolish the Milwaukee county park board. He succeeded in introducing a bill validating the purchase of land by the Milwaukee county park board, which was declared void after the death of the contractor. The amount is $900. The contractor left a wife and eleven children, and it is proposed to permit them to inherit the amount earned by the husband and father.

The assembly had an exciting time last night on Senator Cunningham's bill to establish a home for crippled and deformed children, and the A. E. Meeting house was crowded with people on Sunday as not works of charity or necessity. The former bill, which passed the senate last week, was finally ordered to third reading, 50 to 24. The bill appropriates $20,000 to be paid in installments of $5,000 each. The bill was introduced by Senator Minkley, who made a strong and impressive plea for the bill.

At the close of Hull's speech he was loudly applauded in a rather unusual tribute.

The March bill referred to, excluding from the list of works of charity and necessity the keeping open of grocery stores and meat shops on Sunday, called out a sharp debate in which Assemblyman Hansen of Manitowish, Walsh, Jennings, Hedding and Minkley of Milwaukee; and Rosa of Beloit participated. Minkley called attention to the fact that the author of the bill voted every time the question came up in the senate against the bill. He said that the bill was in the interest of working people. The bill was laid over until today.

The Roethe bill proposing to abolish the office of state claim agent, now held by former Senator F. M. Wilcox of Appleton, was indefinitely postponed by a big vote.

The Schnitzler bill authorizing the governor to accept in behalf of the state the grant of the Canadian loan by congress, was passed.

The bill by the special committee on conservation proposing to reserve to the state all mineral rights on state lands that may be sold was introduced by Senator Peavey, giving aid of $8,000 to the naval militia and empowering the state board of public affairs to investigate organizations receiving state aid.

The senate killed the Chinnock bill providing that candidates may pay a fee in lieu of circulating petitions in order to get their names on the primary ballot.

AFFAIRS IN MEXICO CAREFULLY WATCHED BY NAVY OFFICIALS

Order Investigation Into Report That American Railroad Magnate Is Being Held For Ransom.

Washington, July 23.—Acting Secretary Roosevelt of the navy, today called upon Rear Admiral Cowles at Guaymas to investigate the report that Thomas Hind, assistant general superintendent of the Southern Pacific railroad in Mexico, is held for ransom by Mexican Federalists there. The state department was without information on the incident.

The supply ship, Buffalo, has gone from Guaymas to Topolobampo and reported conditions quiet at the latter port and the battleship Louisiana which went to Turpan has returned to Vera Cruz.

This later movement leads navy department officials to conclude that a measure of order has been restored at Tuxpan, relieving Americans of the danger they were in when the battleship was sent there under rush orders.

State department reports today say that while the activities of American cowboys at Madera have strained conditions there, there is said to be little danger except to the persons responsible for the killing of two of "el Mocho's" men. General Pancho Villa of the constitutional forces is reported to be taking an interest in the safety of Americans at Madera, the federalists having no force in the vicinity.

Extension of communications between Saltillo and Madera and Tuxpan is reported from Saltillo. Communication over the national railroad to the south.

Repeal of the neutrality proclamation prohibiting exportation of arms to Mexico is being considered by the administration as the next step in the Mexican situation. Conference between President Wilson and congressional leaders were planned today for a discussion of the proposal to which many leaders have given their approval.

No further discussion of Mexican affairs occurred today in the senate. Senator Fall's resolution for protection of the canal and Mr. Aldrich did not attempt to renew the request for action upon it.

Expect Orders.

Oshkosh, July 23.—Oshkosh members of the V. A. G. are of the opinion that the V. A. G. will be called out before long for service in Mexico. They say a situation is developing in the neighboring republic which cannot be met by the regular army. Two local companies are ready to move inside of 24 hours.

Goes for Consultation.

Newport, R. I., July 23.—Rear Admiral Frank E. Beach, commander of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, today received orders to report at Washington.

The admiral arrived here Monday with his flagship Minnesota from Vera Cruz, Mexico, where the battleship had been stationed for more than two months. It is understood that administration officials wish to consult him regarding conditions in Mexico.

CAPTURE BURGLAR AFTER HOT GUN FIGHT

Two Daring Robbers Captured Hiding In Bed After Shooting Policeman—Officer Fatally Wounded.

Chicago, July 23.—Hiding in the bed occupied by two inmates of the novel but ineffectual method adopted today by two alleged hold-up men to escape arrest after one of their party of four had shot and probably fatally wounded a policeman. S. W. Showers at Milwaukee, a policeman, was shot and killed by one of the robbers.

When the four men attacked Policeman Frank Walpole and began shooting at him, he seized one of them, Adam Chlebowski, and used the other, John Novak, as a shield. Time for help. Policeman Showers ran to his assistance. Walpole's assailant then turned on Showers and shot him in the abdomen and in the right thigh. Three of them then ran and hid in the bed.

Acting on information furnished by Chlebowski, police searched the home of Frank Rozinski and there found George Smith and Walter Novak in bed with two others who were pretending to sleep and were trying to hide the suspects from the police. When Smith and Novak were arrested Rozinski and his wife were also held pending examination. Smith is charged with the shooting of Showers.

In a statement made to Detective Edward Sullivan, Walter Novak 20 years old, arrested with four companions today after they had fatally wounded policeman Samuel W. Showers at Milwaukee, said that he and his partner admitted having taken part in more than thirty robberies in two months and boasted of his career of crime.

"I was born a thief and I've been a thief ever since," said Novak. "I don't care whether I go to the gallows or not. I started when I was nine years old stealing pennies from kids. I have been put in all kinds of institutions to reform me, but they only made me worse. I don't want any member of my family to come and see me. If they come I'll kick them out."

COPPER MINERS WALK OUT ON BIG STRIKE

Fifteen Thousand Miners in Copper Mines of Michigan Go on Union Strike—Mines Close Down.

Calumet, Mich., July 23.—Fifteen thousand miners in the copper mines of the Lake Superior district struck today. All the mines are closed. The men demand recognition of the western federation of miners, an eight hour day abolition of the one man drill and better working conditions. Although not all the underground workers are affiliated with the union the walkout necessitated the complete shut-down. No disorder is reported in the district so far. The mining companies seem determined not to treat with the federation and are prepared for a long period of idleness. The recognition of the union is the principal issue. The mines shut down are the Calumet and Hecla, the Tamarack, the Osceola, Wolverine, Centennial, Mohawk, Ahmeek, Champion, Baltimore, Quincy, Iowa Royal, Superior, Franklin, La Salle and various development workings.

Tin Workers Strike.

Chickadee, W. Va., July 23.—Three hundred employees of the Phillips Sheet and Tin Plate company here walked out today in sympathy with the strike of the tin miners of the company at Steubenville, Ohio, and Wierlow, W. Va. plants. 800 men remained in the local mill.

WOLF RIVER BILL IS SIGNED BY M'GOVERN

Assemblyman Battis' Bill on Water Power Issues Signed Today—Other Bills Passed.

Madison, Wis., July 23.—The Wolf River reservoir bill, introduced by Assemblyman Battis of Oshkosh, which was one of the principal water power issues before this legislature, was approved by Governor McGovern yesterday and will probably receive official publication today. The governor also signed the Chinnock bill creating the Lake Superior and Mississippi river waterway commission, whose purpose shall be to cooperate with similar body from Minnesota in prevailing upon congress to construct a canal between lake and river, if it should be found advisable.

The Everett bill providing for an exchange of judges between the municipal and county courts of Racine county, and in Kenosha county, were signed. Others signed are: Rosa, for inspection of hotels and restaurants; Bolan, giving additional aid for the purchase of land at the site of the first territorial capital at Belmont; and Peavey, appropriating $2,000 for a state soils laboratory in connection with the state agricultural college.

GERMANS CRITICISE NICARAGUAN TREATY

Berlin Press Calls Wilson's Latest Foreign Move a Return to "Dollar Diplomacy."

Berlin, July 23.—The proposed treaty between the United States and Nicaragua evoked a few sarcastic comments in the German press on President Wilson's return to the system of "dollar diplomacy."

Government circles, however, express themselves as perfectly satisfied that the proposed protectorate over Nicaragua will diminish the chances of industrial disturbances and improve the business conditions and the financial stability of the country.

THREE CHINESE TO JOIN CHINESE LEPER COLONY

Victoria, B. C., July 23.—Among the passengers sailing for the Orient today were three Chinese who have volunteered to spend the remainder of their lives working in the leper settlement of Sheekung Island, near Canton, China. All three come from Montreal or its vicinity. A number of friends and acquaintances were on hand to bid the three young women Godspeed on the journey whence they will never return.

WILL INVESTIGATE RAISED COAL RATES

District Attorney Rotan Will Investigate Retail Dealers Raising Prices on Coal.

Philadelphia, July 23.—District Attorney Samuel P. Rotan of this city said today that he would investigate the raising of the price of anthracite coal by retail dealers in Philadelphia. Recently the legislature passed a bill which was signed by Governor Tamm, levying a tax of 2 1/2% on the value of each ton of anthracite coal mined or approximately five cents a ton. The coal prices immediately raised the price of coal at the mine to cover the tax and yesterday Philadelphia retailers announced that beginning August 1 they would add ten cents to each ton of coal used for family purposes and five cents for steam.

English Lawyer Given Penal Prison Sentence

London, July 23.—Arthur Newton, the lawyer who came into so much prominence during the trial of Dr. Crippen for murder was sentenced to three years penal servitude at the Old Bailey today on a trial of conspiracy to defraud Dr. Hans Thorsch a wealthy young citizen of Vienna out of $115,000 by false pretenses in 1911 and 1912. Newton's companion Berkeley Edwards was sentenced at the same time to 15 months hard labor.

FORMER COMMISSIONER OF INSURANCE ENDS HIS LIFE

Denver, Colo., July 23.—William L. Clayton, the insurance commissioner of Colorado during former Governor John Shafroth's administration, committed suicide at his home here this morning by inhaling gas. Financial troubles are given as the reason for his act. He was heavily interested in lumber transactions in the northern part of Colorado.

BATH-ROOM ACCESSORIES AND Summer Comfort

There is no time in the year when the bathroom is as much in use as in midsummer. During the hot days the shower bath and the cold tub are in constant demand.

Have you arranged your bathroom so that you and your family can have the benefit of modern convenience?

Have you an adequate shower bath? Have you soap, sponge, toothbrush and drinking glass holders? Have you glass shelves, toilet preparations and a medicine cabinet? Have you bath mats and a good supply of rough towels?—and so on, ad lib?

There are many bath room accessories on the market planned for convenience and sanitation. The list is far too long to enumerate here, but if you are not already entirely familiar with what is to be had in this line, turn to the advertising columns of THE GAZETTE and learn something on the subject. You will be astonished to find how much real comfort you can procure for yourself and your family at very moderate cost.

STATE COMMISSION ORDERS INTERURBAN CARS TO STOP

Madison, Wis., July 23.—The state railroad commission in an order today directed the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company to stop its interurban cars at fifteen designated street intersections in the city of Racine. The petition for more stops was filed by the city. The commission does not grant all the favors in this respect desired, saying it will be impossible to reduce materially the running time between Racine and Milwaukee by limiting to any great extent the number of stops now established in Racine.

FOURTEEN GERMAN MINERS KILLED BY FALLING COAL

GENERAL REVISION WILL LOWER RATE

JANESVILLE SHIPPERS WILL BE AFFECTED BY THE NEW ORDERS.

WEIGHT LIMITATIONS

Parcel Post Regulations to be Materially Changed.

Plans for the extension, improvement and reduction in rates of the parcel post were announced on Saturday by Postmaster General Burleson, which will affect Janesville shippers materially.

The changes which are to become effective on Aug. 15, include an increase from eleven pounds to twenty pounds in the maximum weight of parcels; a material reduction in the postage rates in the first and second zones, and the abandonment of the parcel post map as a means of computing rates and the substitution for it of a rate chart individualized to every postoffice in the United States. The plans contemplate the purchase of a large number of automobiles to be used exclusively for the delivery of parcel post matter.

While, for the present, the maximum weight limit of twenty pounds and the reduction in rates will apply only to the first and second zones, from any given postoffice—a distance of about 150 miles—the changes directed constitute the first long step toward a universal extension of the system and a general reduction in the rates of postage on parcel matter.

It is my expectation and belief," said Postmaster General Burleson, "that eventually—and it may be fifteen or twenty years—the postal service will handle practically all of the small package transportation business in the United States. The maximum weight limit, extended now from eleven to twenty pounds, I expect to see increased to 100 pounds, and experience may demonstrate the practicability of handling the parcel business at even lower rates than we now propose."

In the making of extensions and reductions of rates it is necessary for us to proceed with caution, so as to afford ample opportunity to prepare for increased business. For that reason we have made the changes proposed apply only to the first and second zones. I appreciate fully the sentiment for an increase in the weight limit and a reduction in rates to all zones, but it is necessary for us, in a sense, to feel our way."

Burleson Explains Changes. Mr. Burleson announced the changes as follows: "The first zone shall include the territory within the local delivery of any office and the first zone rate of postage will apply to all parcel post mail deposited at any office for local delivery or for delivery by city carrier on rural routes emanating from that postoffice.

"The second zone shall include the remainder of what is now the second zone and shall include all the units of area located in whole or in part within a radius of approximately 150 miles from any given postoffice.

"The rate of postage on parcels weighing in excess of four ounces in the proposed first zone will be reduced from 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound or fraction thereof to 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound or fraction thereof. The rate for the second zone will be reduced from 5 cents for the first pound and 3 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof to 5 cents for the first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof. The rate for the third zone will be reduced from 5 cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound or fraction thereof.

"The maximum weight of parcel post packages will be increased from eleven pounds to twenty pounds. The increase of weight to apply only to the first and second zones. No change has been made in the size or form of the package.

See Many Advantages. Statistics collected by the department show that quite one-third of the total number of parcels mailed are handled within the proposed first and second zones, and the postmaster general believes that the increase in the weight limit and the reduction of the rates of postage in the first and second zones, as proposed, will benefit greatly more than one-third of the public, and that the producer, the consumer and the local merchant will profit materially by the changes. He points out, too, that the farmers, who were led to anticipate much benefit from the parcel post service, will be afforded a cheap means of disposing of their products directly to the consumer and that the local merchants whose trade does not justify the employment of extensive delivery service also will be benefited, as the system will put him in close touch with his customers.

At the outset it was estimated that 300,000,000 parcels would be handled during the first year of the operation of the parcel post system, but it now appears from the statistics that, influenced by the changes proposed, the service will be so popularized that the number of parcels carried during the ensuing twelve months will be more than double the original estimate.

Prepare New Rate Sheet. The rate sheet which is to be used as a substitute for the parcel post map will be prepared as soon as practicable and attached to the parcel post guide. The rate chart, to be made for each separate postoffice, will be worked out from the focal point of the unit in which the postoffice is located. The simplicity of the plan it is thought will make easily determinable the rate of postage from that unit to any other on any available parcel and will greatly facilitate the handling of parcel post matter at postoffice windows.

The insurance fee, which originally was 10 cents, was found to be excessive and an order, effective July 1, reduced to 5 cents the fee on parcels insured to actual value up to $25; and 10 cent fee is exacted only on parcels insured to actual value of more than $25 and not exceeding $50. Under this arrangement the business of insuring packages has more than doubled, particularly in the sending of valuable merchandise.

During the present month an immense business has been built up in the handling of parcels forwarded under the C. O. D. regulation inaugurated July 1, 1913, which is said to be proving popular not only among merchants but among the people generally.

Postal experts estimate that, with the proposed changes in the parcel post system in operation the revenues of the postoffice department will be so increased as to show a substantial surplus at the end of the current fiscal year.

ROBERT M. BOSTWICK.

Charles Gage. The interment was at Oak Hill cemetery. Owing to the prominence of Mr. Bostwick in the business life of the city and his long career as a retail merchant, the majority of the business places of the city were closed this afternoon during the hours of the funeral. During his long residence in Janesville, Mr. Bostwick had made many friends and they were present this afternoon to pay the last respects to his memory.

Mrs. William Hall. Mrs. William Hall passed away at her home, 329 South Main street, yesterday afternoon at 2:09 o'clock.

The deceased has been ill for some time, but her death was unexpected and came as a great shock to the family. The deceased is the wife of former Alderman William Hall, Mrs. Hall was born in Evanston, Ill., 55 years ago and lived in Amboy, Ill., the greater part of her life. She was married to William Hall in 1883 at Amboy, Ill., moved to Janesville in 1895. The deceased was a member of the Congregational church and has lived a Christian life. Besides her husband she leaves a sister, Mrs. Alice Walker of Amboy, Ill., one daughter, Mrs. J. P. Thorne and one son, W. E. Arnold both of this city.

Funeral services will be held at the home 329 South Main street at 2:00 o'clock, Thursday afternoon. Services conducted by the Rev. Dr. Beaton pastor of the Congregational church.

Marion MacDonald. Funeral services for Marion MacDonald were held at two-thirty o'clock this afternoon from the home, 329 North Jackson street. The Reverend J. C. Hazen officiated at the house and the local Grand Army post of which Mr. MacDonald was a member. The pall bearers were Roy Wisner, J. Arthur Granger, John A. Granger and John Haight, all nephews. Interment was made at Oak Hill cemetery.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Making Mistakes. As a result of the election, it will show that the leaders of the recall were too hasty, and there would have been more harmony in the business affairs of the city, no one would have felt like moving out. The press would not dare to reflect on certain business. I am for a liberal form of government, am no church member, but I believe to be in the right, and this is the verdict of the people.

MAKES RECORD RUN ON ST. PAUL ROAD

"Slippery" Slightam, Former Janesville Boy, Makes Seventeen Mile Run in Thirteen Minutes.

Engineer Charles Slightam, who is known to the railroad men as "Slippery" son of Mr. and Mrs. John Slightam residing on North Bluff street, established a record for speed recently that undoubtedly has never been equaled on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. "Slippery" Slightam is the engineer of the "Olympian," the prize train of the St. Paul road, operating between Chicago to the coast and the run was made between Clinton to Missoula, a distance of seventeen miles. The "Olympian" was late at Deer Lodge and the dispatcher was watching for him over the wire and was extremely provoked at the slow time made on the run and as every railroad man knows the trainmen hate to be behind time, especially on such a limited train as the "Olympian." It was evident according to the dispatcher that Slightam was coasting for no apparent reason. The clerk ventured eighteen minutes, but the dispatcher, mindful of "Slippery's" reputation, put his figure at twelve, which would be greatly in excess of a mile a minute rate. The daring engineer, in his efforts to make up time, sailed around the curves and "ate up" the seventeen miles of track between the two stations and when the passenger engine passed under the bridge at the station last thirteen minutes had elapsed since the report from Clinton. This is claimed by Slightam's many friends to be the record for speed for a short distance on the La Crosse division.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Warren, Wis., July 23.—Edward Payson Weston passed through Warren this morning en route from Minneapolis to the end of his journey. He declared that he would reach Black River Falls by night. The entire population of Warren had lined the streets since early morning to greet the aged pedestrian as he passed through the village.

Selenium.

Little as selenium is known outside the scientific world it is not a rare element. Rather it is widely distributed. It is a permanent ingredient of sulphur and as such was known to the alchemists of ancient times, although they did not observe its character as an element. From the chemical standpoint it is classed as a metalloid.—Harper's Weekly.

WATER POWER BILL FULLY DISCUSSED

Committee on Conservation Use Up Four Hours in Debating the Proposed Measure.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 23.—Four hours of the assembly was used yesterday afternoon by the committee on conservation of the senate and two water power men to explain to the assembly the provisions of the new water power bill passed by the senate last week. Former Senator Brau of Grand Rapids and C. T. Bundy of Eau Claire opposed the passage of the bill, claiming that there would be no development under the measure. Senators Huston and Bossard contended that the rights of the state had been fully protected and that the legitimate investors would come under the law to develop water powers in this state.

Senator Brau said that there had been no development in the past six years. He declared that 500,000 horse power of water is going to waste annually in Wisconsin. For the six year period he figured that this would be equal to a displacement of 5,000,000 tons of coal.

The main objection Senator Brau said he had to the bill was that it would permit the property of the water power interests to be taken without just compensation, any time that the state wanted to take the power over. He denounced the provision of the measure that compelled a company taking out a franchise to organize as a public utility. He was followed in his argument by Mr. Bundy who reviewed the history of this legislation in Wisconsin. He maintained that the bill was so drastic in its features that no one would invest a dollar in the proposition. He said that the bill contained a provision for a contract that would make every developing interest waive its right to expect just compensation if the property were ever taken over by the state. He said that the contract was more unreasonable than any ever enacted before the moral code of justice was announced in the Magna Charta.

Senator Huston said that the bill was so framed that the state was given power to control and regulate these vast corporations. The public utilities feature was designed for that very purpose. The measure was framed, he declared on the idea that the corporation could not expect to get a fictitious value for its property. If the state should desire to acquire it within or after thirty years, Senator Bossard claimed that the measure had the endorsement of all experts on this subject, including Senator La Follette.

The Hal Chase-Borton-Zeider deal between the Highlanders and the White Sox may be given a little investigation. So says Ban Johnson, the well known American league president. The deal has begun to take on some of the aspects of a horse trade where one of the horses develops an ailment or malady after ward that had been kept a secret.

at the time the trade was made. Rolfe Zeider, thus far, has been of no use at all to the Highlanders, being more or less bed-ridden with injuries that had not been mentioned by the White Sox management when he was offered to New York. Borton has been sent back to the brush owing to inefficiency. The whole transaction smacks considerably of a horse trade. It is not unlikely, says Ban Johnson, that the national commission will look into the matter. That sort of a deal has been made before.

Connie Mack and Muggsy McGraw are both all set to make two big league records. Should both managers succeed in copping the bunting this season—and they seem to have very far chances of doing so—each will have never been done before, viz., win five pennants for the same club. Both Connie and McGraw have won the four and have only to finish on the top of the heap this year to put over one that has never before been achieved. Frank Clarke has landed four for the Pirates and Frank Chance has won that many for the Cubs, but no other big league leader can point to a record that approaches it. Muggsy won his first pennant for the Giants in 1904 and repeated in 1905. Then he came back in 1911 and 1912. Connie Mack landed the first flag in 1902 and three years later grabbed another, and then in 1910 and 1911 grabbed two more. Muggsy would also have another record in having copped three pennants successfully.

A ball player on the Mount Bradlock (Pa.) team of the Coal and Coke league, enraged at an umpire for calling him out on strikes, rushed home, seized a Winchester rifle, and returned to the ball field to settle his score with the umpire. Strong men shuddered, women swooned and little children beat it to cover. Within two minutes after his reappearance with the gun, Luther White, for that was the umpire's name, was quite alone on the field. The crowd rapidly dispersed. Umpire McCormick, White's well-versed quarry, finally located two officers and the three of them swooped down upon White while in pursuit of the catcher of the visiting team who also had been so

WILL BREAK RECORDS AT KEOKUK REGATTA

Commodore Blackton's "Baby Reliance III," Entered at Keokuk Races—Promise Sixty Miles Per Hour.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton of the Motor Club of America, whose "Baby Reliance III," broke all existing world's records at the annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association at Davenport, last summer, has notified Chairman Charles F. Hanley of the racing committee that he will send two new "Reliances" to the association's races which will be held this year at Keokuk, Iowa, August 26, 27 and 28.

The motor boatmen of the Mississippi valley will again set up a world record for high speed power boats, for Commodore Blackton has had experts working ever since last year's regatta on a boat that would pass the 60-mile-an-hour mark. Whether this will be accomplished, remains to be proven, but it seems certain that it will, for last year's "Baby Reliance" slid over the dew at 53.3 miles, nearly 10 miles faster than any previous record.

There is prospect of the keenest rivalry for the championship honors at Keokuk next month. Commodore James A. Pugh of Chicago, has wired the committee that he will be at the starting line with "Disturber III," the big 40-foot hydroplane which has 700 horse power, stored in 24 cylinders. This is the largest power plant ever packed into an American racing hull. "Disturber" was too powerful for her fittings; something was constantly wrong. Commodore Pugh has had two experts at work on her since last fall. In trials in Chicago Harbor a few days ago she is said to have made better than 55 miles an hour. This would seem to insure an epoch making race at Keokuk, where the new 30-mile lake, created by the $27,000,000 power dam, is said to form the finest race course in America.

CARDINALS TO PLAY FAST ROCKFORD TEAM

Janesville Cardinals to Play Dr. Peppers of Rockford Sunday Afternoon—White Sox Play Jefferson.

Crandall, star pitcher of the Janesville Cardinals, will have the game of his career Sunday afternoon when the Cards cross bats with the Dr. Peppers of Rockford. The game is scheduled for the Driving Park.

The Dr. Peppers are the strongest team in the Forest City, as they far outclass the Orioles whom the Cards defeated here two weeks ago after Crandall had only doled out four hits to them. The Peppers team has played fourteen contests this season and have won all but two of them. They have played some of the strongest teams of northern and central Illinois and all but three of them have been away from their home diamonds.

Last Sunday they played the St. Patton Colts at Beloit, and won their game easily, against the famed Lee Lions. They have three pitchers whose ability is above the average and judging from the confidence of the Rockford team's manager, they are of the opinion that they can defeat any team in the northwest in the amateur class.

Crandall, famed twirler of Milton College, will be on the firing line for the locals and promises to make it interesting for the visitors. Wilson will be behind the log for the Cards.

White Sox to Jefferson. For Sunday afternoon the Janesville White Sox have scheduled game with the Jefferson city team and although their opponents are older and more experienced in the game, the Sox expect to come out of the game with the long end of the score.

Mullen is slated to do the pitching and will make it decidedly interesting for the Jefferson players. Captain Sweeney expects a hard game and consequently is going to strengthen his lineup as far as possible.

Several Quit Business Early In Season—Others Will Shorten Term or Change Circuits.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, Ill., July 23.—With the baseball season half over, outward and visible signs are abundant that the year 1913 is not likely to establish a high record for prosperity among the minor leagues. The larger organizations are reported to be coming along nicely, but many of the smaller ones are finding it hard going. Several threw up the sponge before the season was many weeks old. Some are endeavoring to weather the storm by shortening or otherwise changing their circuits, while others are believed to be very close to the rocks.

The United States league quit business before it got fairly started and the "Mink" league also succumbed early in the season.

The Interstate league, which started the season with eight clubs, is expected to finish with its circuit cut in half. Steubenville, Columbus, Zanesville and Canton were dropped from the circuit.

The Illinois-Missouri league has dropped Pekin and Canton from the circuit and the Western State has shortened its circuit because of poor support. Manhattan and Junction City were the places dropped.

The franchise transfers have been numerous all along the line and resulted in nearly every instance from poor business. The Covington team in the new Federal league has been transferred to Kansas City. In the Texas-Oklahoma league the Wichita Falls team has been switched to Hugo, Okla. The Milwaukee team in the Wisconsin-Illinois league is now located in Fond du Lac. In the Eastern Association the Ho-yoke franchise is now held by Meriden.

NIFTY FROCK OF TILLEUL LINEN

This frock is made of tilleul linen. The skirt is plain in the front and is slightly fluted at the waist line from under a deep girde of plaid silk. The long loop and slash end of plaid silk falls from under the girde in the center of the front. The skirt is slashed across the back and the opening is filled in with plaits of linen, and the inner part is made with a panel of linen, the end of which is caught under the slash. The jacket is short in the front, reaching only to the top of the girde, and is finished with a band on each side of the front. The skirt is cut in one with the jacket part of the body, with stitching. The jacket is made with a slanted seam under the arm, and the neck is finished with a shaped band of the linen. The sleeve is joined to the armhole with a seam, and is three-quarter length and finished below the elbow with a cuff.

J. A. FATHERS REMAINS MAYOR OF JANESVILLE BY A MAJORITY OF 98

DEFEATS RECALL CANDIDATE JOHN C. NICHOLS IN CLOSE AND BITTER CONTEST AT POLLS TUESDAY.

CITY'S LARGEST VOTE

Third Ward's Elg Majority For Present Mayor Gives Him The Victory—His Supporters Hold Celebration.

James A. Fathers will continue to hold office as Mayor of the city of Janesville. By a majority of 98 votes he defeated Candidate John C. Nichols who was behind a movement to effect his recall, at the polls on Tuesday. Fathers carried the first, second and third wards, while Nichols polled heavily in the fourth and fifth where he received substantial majorities.

Interest in the outcome of the struggle was intense. There were thousands of persons gathered downtown awaiting the results. In front of the Gazette office where the returns were posted the streets were packed with men and women eager to learn the result. The first, second and fourth ward returns were the first to be received and when the posters announced that Fathers was re-elected, the figures from these three wards, there went up a deafening cheer.

Then came the vote of the third ward and finally the fifth which went for Nichols 147, and Fathers' majority was shown to be 98 votes. For a minute the crowd at the Gazette office went wild. Lusty yells mingled with tooting auto horns rent the air and were heard to the city's limits. Then followed the celebration for the Moose band was called out, a parade of automobiles and marchers was formed, bon-fires were lighted, and a bonfire was burned. The Nott Bros. furnished an abundance of megaphones which added to the din.

While there was plenty of enthusiasm shown by the supporters of the present Mayor in their jubilation over the victory, the demonstration was clean and well conducted in no way approaching the elements of riotousness. The center of celebration was at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets, where the crowd surged for fully two hours. The parade was almost completely blocked and the police had difficulty in clearing the tracks for the city and interurban cars.

Mayor Fathers who was in the car which led the parade of triumph was called on for a speech by the masses. He mounted the seat of the auto and shouted so that all could hear "I wish to thank you all for the kind reception which you have given me." Pointing to himself, he said: "This is the invisible government which you see here. That is the bridge where the invisible government has been resting," indicating Milwaukee street bridge. He was favored with cheer after cheer.

Later in the evening City Attorney W. H. Dougherty was discovered among the crowd and he was given an ovation. He received congratulations from numerous friends for the work which he had done in behalf of Mayor Fathers.

The Moose band after parading Main and Milwaukee streets, gave a short concert at the intersection of these streets and then serenaded the Gazette office which was still besieged with eager citizens who were studying the returns as posted in the window. Following are the figures at the various precincts:

First ward: Fathers, 322; Nichols, 279; Fathers' majority, 52.
Second ward: Fathers 285; Nichols, 206; Fathers' majority, 79.
Third ward: Fathers, 322; Nichols, 229; Fathers' majority 93.
Fourth ward: Fathers 295; Nichols, 474; Nichols' majority 179.
Fifth ward: Fathers, 136; Nichols, 233; Nichols' majority 147.
Total vote for Fathers, 1,570; total vote for Nichols, 1,472; majority for Fathers 98.

Yesterday's vote marks the end of a struggle which has been fraught at times with not a little bitterness. Both sides were active to a degree never before seen in Janesville and in fact in any other city many times as large. All day long there was a steady stream of voters to the various polling places, not a few being brought by the automobiles which were supplied by the friends of both candidates.

There were a large number of men whose votes were sworn in. A corps of preholders for both sides was kept at the different booths ready to help some friend who had failed to register. Men who had not taken the trouble to vote in any election for years were brought to the front to aid in the decision at the crisis of Tuesday. Both sides confident of victory, put up their best fight.

While friends of the present administration and of Candidate Nichols were equally positive of the outcome, there were few who were optimistic enough to claim a big majority for either side. As the voting progressed it was evident that there would be over 2,000 votes cast and that the margin of victory would be small.

Interest in the Janesville election was intense throughout the whole state to the extent that it was the first trial to be given to the recall in Wisconsin. Chicago and Milwaukee papers were anxious for reports on the result and gave considerable space to the accounts in today's issues.

It was the hope expressed on every side last night that the city had seen the end of the present recall agitation.

RECALLISTS PLEDGE SUPPORT TO FATHERS

WILL AID HIM IN FULFILLING HIS PLATFORM DECLARATIONS, SAYS NICHOLS COMMITTEE.

TO ABIDE BY RESULTS

Leaders in Recent Political Fight Issue Statements Which Are Most Encouraging for City's Welfare.

Statements given out today by the leaders on both sides of the political fight which culminated in the re-election of Mayor James A. Fathers at the polls yesterday, were considered most encouraging for the welfare of Janesville.

The attitude adopted by the recall party which was behind Candidate John C. Nichols, is taken to mean that they will abide by the result and will join forces with the supporters of the Fathers administration for the benefit of the community. At a meeting of Mr. Nichols' personal campaign committee at the office of H. L. Maxfield this morning the following statement was drafted and given out:

"In response to the will of the people, as expressed at the ballot box yesterday, the undersigned, expressing the sentiment of the members of the John C. Nichols campaign committee, extend our congratulations to Mr. Fathers upon the results, and as citizens of one community pledge our efforts to assist in the fulfillment of his platform declarations.

"We stand ever ready to make Janesville a better and greater city."

H. MAXFIELD, Chairman, and J. A. S. SMITH, Secretary.

The Recall Campaign Committee. Mr. Nichols has declared himself in the following manner:

"We anticipated winning the election but the people have spoken. I have signed the recall and the Fathers would stand by us to the end of the campaign. We congratulate Mayor Fathers on his success. We are only sorry that we did not beat him by a larger majority. We can beat us. The recall party can beat us. The recall party is not a member of the recall party that does not wish the mayor success, and now that the smoke of the battle is over we shake our hands in friendship with him."

Leaders on the administration side were not inclined to comment, preferring to draw their own deductions from the figures as announced last night at the polls.

City Attorney Dougherty, who did such active and effective work in behalf of Mayor Fathers, said:

"The campaign was hotly waged, and the issue sharply defined. The people have approved the policies of Mayor Fathers and I believe that the result is significant of a new and better growth for Janesville."

CLAIMS LAW WILL RUIN THE FROG FARM INDUSTRY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 23.—Claiming that many boys and girls and some men will be prevented from making a living by enacting frogs, the Spoor bill upon the subject of frogs is enacted into law. H. L. Weed, a former senator from Oshkosh, directed a letter to members of the legislature today, asking them to defeat the measure. The only frog farm known to exist is located between the cities of Oshkosh and Fond du Lac.

Mr. Weed says that if the bill is enacted into law the frog farm industry will be ruined. He also claims that the United States government is about to establish a frog farm, following the idea of the one established in Winnipeg, Canada. The Spoor bill as amended will make the months of March and April a closed season for frogs.

"It has been stated by the supporters of the bill," says Mr. Weed, "that frog meat is the amount of $150,000 annually is shipped from this state to Chicago, New York and other markets and that there is little market for it in Wisconsin. If that is true it furnishes the best reason for killing the frog. Why deprive residents of this state of this source of income? In order to conduct a frog farm and to protect and propagate the frog it is necessary to get them before they spawn in April."

WAGE SUFFRAGE FIGHT IN SENATE FOR YEAR OF 1916.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 23.—Senator Timothy Burke of Green Bay rose in the senate yesterday afternoon and inquired what action had been taken on a judiciary committee bill providing for submitting the question of women's suffrage to the people in 1916. This bill was commonly believed to have been introduced by the Green Bay orator through this committee. When it came in it was referred to a committee. Yesterday morning Senator Burke found it lying on his desk.

In response to his inquiries, Senator H. C. Martin of the committee on legislative procedure stated that all he knew about it was the record on the

ORGANIZE ATHLETIC CLUBS BECAUSE OF BOXING BILL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 23.—Since the passage of the Hedding boxing bill, several athletic clubs have been formed in Wisconsin to handle bouts under the supervision of the newly created state athletic commission. Within the last week such organizations have been formed in Beloit and Superior, and yesterday the Queensbury Athletic club of Milwaukee was licensed by the secretary of state. The incorporators, T. S. Andrews, Manning Vaughn and Joseph Ernathner, are all well known sporting writers. The capital stock is $10,000. The purpose is stated to be to "promote, hold, stage and conduct athletic contests of all kinds, including boxing and wrestling contests."

ODD FEATURES CONTAINED IN WILL OF SWEETSER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Boston, Mass., July 23.—One of the oddest wills that has ever come before the Essex county probate court was brought up for hearing at Salem today. The will is that of Thomas W. Sweetser, who died about sixty years ago. The unique feature of the will is a provision for furnishing the poor of Salem with cook stoves. It is stipulated that $10,000 be paid to the city of Salem, that this be put on interest at 6 per cent forever, and that $500 be spent annually in buying stoves and utensils for the poor. Why this odd provision of the will has not been carried out during the sixty years that have elapsed since the testator's death is expected to be made plain at the present hearings before the court.

JANESVILLE WEDNESDAY JULY 23, 1913.

The trough like depression that made its appearance yesterday over the center of the country is moving slowly eastward. Its center is now north of the Great Lakes. Heavy downpours have been experienced in the lake region. To the west of this low is a well marked area of high pressure, centered over Montana and North Dakota, and attended by clear skies and lower temperatures.

Another area of high pressure is on the coast of the Carolinas. Weather is fair over most of the South. Along the coasts of the Gulf of Mexico and the southern Atlantic rains have fallen. At Galveston 1.16 inches fell.

Not What He Was Looking For.

"I never robbed a man but once," said the honest tramp, "and then I was starving. He would not give me a penny, and I couldn't stand the gnawings in my stomach any longer. So I knocked him down and went through his pockets. What kind of a haul did I make? Just one little bottle, which read on the label: 'Peppin—for that full feeling after eating.'"

One Man Benefitted.

Jukes—"Who was the best man at the wedding?" Jenkins—"Well, I'm not sure. The bride's father got all the bills to pay, the bridegroom had to buy diamond brooches for the bridesmaids, the guests had to give handsome presents; upon my word, I think the best man was the clergyman—he was the only one who made anything out of it."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

DARNING THE WEAK PLACES.

"BUT THERE aren't any holes in those stockings," said Molly. "Why do you put them into the pile to be darned?"

The Lady who always knows somehow had been sorting out her weekly grist of stockings on the veranda and Molly had been lying in the hammock watching.

The Lady picked up the pair of stockings in question and ran her hand into them again for Molly's benefit. "I know there isn't any hole," she explained, "but see all those weak places."

"You aren't going to darn them?" asked Molly incredulously.

"Indeed I am," said the Lady. "I always do. I find it's very much easier than darning holes. That's part of my philosophy, you know."

"Philosophy," echoed Molly, inquiringly.

"Yes," said the Lady. "I mean that I believe in darning the weak places everywhere in life instead of waiting for the holes to come. You know my husband inherited weak lungs. You didn't know it? Well, I suppose that means we've darned the weak place pretty successfully. Both his father and mother died of tuberculosis and he was naturally stoop-shouldered and narrow-chested. If he hadn't done anything about it, I don't doubt that his lungs would have given out under some of the hard strains he has had to bear. But instead of waiting for the hole to come, he darned the weak place by doing exercises and sleeping out of doors and building himself up by his diet. Wasn't that better than letting the weak place become a hole and then spending the rest of his life trying to patch it up?"

Molly admitted that it was.

"Well, that's one way of darning the weak places," went on the Lady. "And Mrs. S. is an example of another. That pretty little girl of hers is just beginning to realize how pretty she is and to think of nothing but clothes and boys. Some mothers would say, 'It is just the foolish age,' and wouldn't try to do anything about it unless the weak place became a bad hole, but Mrs. S. believes in darning the weak places, and she is doing all she can right now to make Dorothy modest and sensible and unselfish."

"And then there are the weak places in our efficiency," went on the Lady, warming to her subject. "Now, I know a stenographer who is so quick and accurate, and such a pleasant person to have around, that her employers bear with her bad spelling. Sometimes they get out of patience with her, but they have always forgiven her so far, and she thinks they always will, and so she doesn't try to darn that weak place. I should hate to see it go through into a hole because it would be so much harder then to patch it up than it is now, but—"

"But I have tried," interrupted Molly, suddenly.

"How hard?" asked the Lady, not at all surprised by the interruption.

"Not very," admitted Molly, reluctantly. "You don't happen to have a spelling book handy, do you?"

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of fifteen. I am going with a boy who is also fifteen. I have been going with him for nearly a year. He is just what I would like. Do you think it would be wise for me to decide? It seems as if we are very deeply in love.

(2) I went with a boy for almost four months. We had a falling out, but it was all, you call my fault. I see now where I made my mistake. How could I gain him back? He is now going with another girl, but I know he likes me very well, as he devotes himself to me when I am around.

(3) Please tell me how to break my friend of calling me "dearest," "sweetheart," "darling," and "little one."

(4) A certain boy has asked me several times to go riding and it has been impossible for me to accept but twice. He does not ask me any more and as I like him very much I want to know how I could let him know that I would go if he asked me?

(5) If you have been going with a boy for a long while do you think it proper for the boy to kiss the girl goodnight?

(6) Should couples of fifteen or sixteen spoon?

(7) How late should boys stay at night when about our age?

(8) How should a boy of our age show his love for a girl without saying it?

THE BLOND TWINS.

(1) You could not decide anything if you wanted to, my dear, because you are at an age when any decision you want to make will not be permanent. A few years from now both you and this boy will look back on this attachment as one of those "baby" affairs to be forgotten.

(2) The boy may not care to come back. If he does he will show some signs of it. Just be pleasant to him and if he wants you back he'll let you know.

(3) Just don't notice it and he'll stop the habit.

(4) I don't see how you can let him know when you see him you might lead up to the rides in your conversation and tell him how much you enjoyed the only opportunity you ever had to go with him.

(5) Not unless they are engaged to be married.

(6) No, they are simply cheapening themselves.

(7) Nine o'clock is late enough.

(8) By being considerate of her and courteous to her and her people.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My face is terribly shiny. Please help me if you can.

Perhaps you should use a milder soap. Try the imported castile and rub soon on the face once a day only. Occasionally use a bran bag instead of soap—simply make a bag of double cheesecloth, fill it with bran and use like a washcloth. By rubbing a bit of cold cream into the skin and dusting on a little rice powder once a day, the shininess will depart. If you do this be sure to thoroughly clean your face with cold cream at night before retiring, for the powder must not be allowed to remain on the skin.

Dishes for the Invalid.

A healthy appetite is readily satisfied with any suitable food. In times of illness it is often difficult to provide such food as will be relished or as can be assimilated and utilized by the system, yet under no other condition is the question of food of such supreme importance.

Simple foods are, as a rule, the best because the most readily assimilated. That such may appeal to the appetite they should be served in the most attractive way. Appetite is influenced by the sight, smell and taste of food and all three of the senses should be appealed to in preparing the meals for an invalid.

The temperature of food influences its digestibility. All hot foods should be served hot, cold foods served cold. Small quantities at a serving and few varieties at a meal will generally prove the most satisfactory. There are no special dishes suited to all cases. In illness it is especially important that the diet should be such as is adapted to the special needs of the sick one.

Hot buttered toast, tea, rich jellies and similar dainties, so commonly served to the sick, are usually the very worst articles of diet of which they could partake. Scrupulous neatness and care in all the minute particulars of the cooking and serving of foods for the sick will help much in making it appetizing and digestible. Dainty dishes, polished glass and silver with clean napery should always be accessories of the invalid's tray.

In fevers, where the simplest nourishment is demanded, fruitpulp as to leave the shell. Crush juices are the most appropriate of all foods. It is now well recognized that beef tea and meat broths should be wholly discarded in cases of fever, as the patient is already suffering from the accumulation of waste matter in the system to such an extent that even the small additional amount obtained from beef tea may lessen his prospects of recovery. When other foods than fruit juices are available, fruit soups, fruit jellies prepared with sanitas vegetable gelatine, fruit eggnog, fruit gruels, gluten and granose gruels.

For invalids able to digest solid food, roasted rice, granose flakes, granola, etc., will be found of service.

Of breads, none are better suited to the needs of the invalid than the unfermented sticks and puddings, granose biscuits, wafers, breakfast toast and zwieback, and whole wheat bread served in some of the appetizing ways.

Especially dainty dishes are the apple snow, grape apple, filled bananas, fruit sandwich and other articles prepared from sanitas vegetable gelatine.

Invalids who need a liquid or part liquid diet will find malted nuts and other nut broths and bouillons particularly suitable and palatable.

For the convalescent and those who need special strength and blood-building material, foods rich in proteins, which are essential, will be found in proteins, eggs, and the many appetizing dishes to be prepared from the legumes and nuts.

Granose Gruel.

Moisten one-half cup of granose flakes with one cup of hot water, press through a fine sieve and add one-half cup of cream. Season with a little salt and serve hot.

Filled Bananas.

The back of the waist hangs over the draped belt of soft silk, while the skirt is caught up in a plait across the front, and another plait is laid in at the back to the left side of the seam.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

BY FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

Are you saving any of your income and if so how much? Have you a bank account and do you keep it alive by a little judicious aid? Or do you spend every cent you earn and sometimes a little bit more? Do you buy everything your fancy chances to admire regardless of whether or not you can afford it? Or are you that rare thing nowadays, a woman who knows when and how to buy?

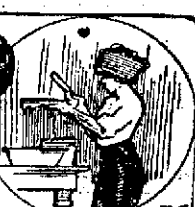

Do you realize how hard your John is forced to work in order to keep you and the children? He doesn't complain either. That's one strong point in his favor and should be a strong incentive to aid you in the savings of at least a little of his earnings.

"You have said that so many times we are weary of hearing it," you say. "Has it any effect? Are you a wee bit more cautious a bit more determined to buy wisely and well?"

If so I have not talked in vain. Now to proceed along a bit further—on this personal road. Are you in your own home or if not are you working in that direction? It's absolutely impossible you say to get a home of your own the way prices continue to soar. It takes every cent John earns to make both ends meet and more could be used if you had it. If such is the case what about the future? Remember: that the first one hundred dollars is the hardest to get. After that it seems easy, probably because by that time you become interested in seeing your bank account grow. Now I am not in favor of being parsimonious. No! Just tell yourself and (John) that each pay day you will save some certain amount. It can be done. It is being done right here in our home town by our near neighbors. Are we going to be the only ones of the young folks that were married when we were that in the days to come will still be renting? Let's have an ambition worthy of the man. Let's start this very week to save for a home of our own, so that, when our life's sun begins to sink down in the golden west we can watch it in serene content.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.

A bit of camphor gum in a small dish, placed over an alcohol lamp, turned low, will always put mosquitoes to flight.

White satin slippers can be cleaned by scrubbing them with white soap and milk. Put them on a slipper tree to dry.

A brass kettle may be nicely cleaned with salt and vinegar.

Quinine hair tonic may be made by putting sixty grains of quinine into one quart of bay rum. Rub well into the scalp every night.

NUTS IN COOKERY.

Dietitians give nuts a valued place in the list of wholesome foods, but we are prone to forget that they are a concentrated form of food, and as our diet needs bulk, to keep the digestive machinery in good working order, they should be used with foods that give that added bulk.

Nut are rich in protein and fats, and some have, like the chestnut, a small amount of starch. One reason why many people find nuts hard to digest is because of imperfect mastication.

A most delicious omelet may be prepared with an accompaniment of blanched almonds. Just before turning in the omelet put a half cup of almonds in the pan, pour on the omelet and use great care to keep from scorching. Fold and serve with a hot maple syrup sauce poured over the omelet.

Nut Bread.—This is bread particularly nice for sandwiches without any filling, although marmalade or orange is very delicious with it. Sift together two and a half cups of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add a half cupful of sugar, a cupful of milk, a well beaten egg. Mix well and add three-fourths of a cupful of walnut meats broken in bits. Bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes.

Almonds au Diable.—Blanch two ounces of almonds and cut in shreds lengthwise, using a sharp knife. Fry in just enough butter to prevent burning. Mix a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoonful of chutney, two tablespoonfuls of chopped pickles, a little salt and a dash of cayenne. Pour over the nuts until thoroughly seasoned and heated.

Nut Sandwiches.—Walnuts browned in a bit of butter and seasoned well with salt, added to grated maple sugar, makes a most delicious filling for white bread sandwiches.

A little cream may be added for moisture, and it also improves the filling.

HELPS SEARCH FOR HUSBAND'S SLAYER

Mrs. James Acques.

Mrs. James Acques is taking a prominent part in the search of Chicago police for the murderer of her husband, a Chicago restaurant man. She goes to police headquarters each day to confer with detectives who are on the case.

"It's my own discovery and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results," answers Camille de Verlaque, when her friends ask her about the marvelous change in the appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you take my advice, she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it! It did all this in one night."

It affords me a world of pleasure to tell anyone else just how remarkable results were brought about. I give you, absolutely free, the identical prescription which has made me so happy by beautifying my hands and arms. You can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which can be prepared at your own home, is as follows:

Go to any drug store and get an ounce bottle of Kutol Compound. Pour the entire contents into a two ounce bottle, add a quarter ounce of witch hazel and fill with water. Mix this at home. Apply night and morning. The first application will delight you. It gives the skin a velvety softness, obliterates all discolorations such as tan, sun spots, freckles and coarse pores, roughness and in fact, every blemish the skin is heir to. It also produces a marvelous effect on the face, neck and shoulders. It is deliciously cool and soothing and is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off.

If the neck is discolored from being exposed to the sun or from wearing high collars, this prescription will immediately relieve that condition. No matter how rough and unsightly the hands and arms, or what aches they have had through hard work; no matter what exposure the skin has had to sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands of women are using this prescription with just the same results that I have had." Advertisement.

You Don't Have to Be Rich to Be Happy

You can be happy with a $1.25 expenditure—simply a contract for a $14.50 gas range, which will take $1.25 right now and the balance in installments of $1.25 each. This gas range will surprise you for efficiency, convenience, comfort and economy. The fuel is carried in for you, there is no kindling to cut, no wait for the fire to get started and no ashes to carry out. When you are through cooking, the fuel expense stops. There is happiness in every moment in the kitchen. The even temperature gives you best results in cooking or baking. Meals can be timed to the minute—that's happiness for the husband. Your work is lessened—that's happiness for you. Think these points over carefully, and you will agree with us that every word written is the truth.

FIRE DESTROYS TWO BARN LAST EVENING

Farm Property Belonging to Will Bratzke Near Footville, Totally Destroyed Last Night.—Loss Estimated at $2,000.

Two huge barns, belonging to the old Carl Willing farm, and now owned by Will Bratzke, about one mile northwest of Footville, were completely demolished by fire last evening, in one of the largest fires seen in that vicinity for some time. The cause is thought to be the result of overheated hay, as in the barns were stored over fifteen loads of dry hay. Some machinery about the structures was also made useless. An alarm was sent in about the vicinity, and a good share of the farmers about the place responded, in an effort to save the house, which was liable to meet the flames. The house was finally saved, and all of the other structures about the farm were saved, but the barns were so far gone when help had been reached, that no attempt to stop the fire would have aided any. The loss is estimated at $2,000, and there is about $1,000 insurance, so that the loss will not be as heavy as it might have been.

CLINTON

Clinton, Wis., July 22.—Paul McKinney and Burdette Rogers expect to leave on an extended trip through the west, September 1, making the journey by easy stages and working place to place, the ultimate goal being the Pan-American exposition. The boys no doubt will have a very enjoyable and profitable trip.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Buckley and son Glenn and daughter Mildred, went to Madison last Friday and purchased a very fine new modern home which they will occupy when they move to Madison in September 1st. Clinton will be the looser when this most excellent family leaves us, and the best wishes of all go with them.

Solon Cooper remembered some of his numerous friends with a generous sample of his Wisconsin apples, which he raised at his home. They were just ripe and were very delicious.

A large number of Clinton citizens are at the Assembly at Delavan Lake and a large number more were over just for the Sunday to hear Rev. Clyde McGee of Chicago, who formerly lived here. If the people of Delavan and Elkhorn patronized the Assembly as loyally as the Clintonites do the success of the venture would be assured every year.

Marcellus Pease of Harvard spent Sunday with his nephew Elmer G. Pease and wife.

Mrs. A. J. Schmidt of Beloit is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Winkley west of town.

Mrs. R. Wilson Moore and young son of Whitewater, Ill., are visiting Mrs. Moore's sister, Mrs. J. I. Green and family.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

HERCULES.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

HERCULES was a citizen of ancient Greece who invented the strangle hold and used it on every body with whom he came in contact. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. Zeus, but he always preferred to be called by his first name.

Hercules has been immortalized in numerous ways and is used quite liberally to advertise suspenders and a stump puller. So far as is known he never sat for his photograph and therefore people had to draw plaster of Paris pictures of him from memory. One of the most popular of these shows him reclining on an elm limb in a bathing suit and an attitude of extreme ennui.

Hercules was endowed at birth with a surplus fund of muscle, which he threw around with the utmost recklessness. One of the very first uses he made of his muscle was to rise up in his cradle and strangle two thick and sinuous serpents which had been sent to assassinate him. Nobody could caress Hercules as a baby without the danger of being unpreparedly caved in.

When Hercules got his growth he gave a public exhibition of his strength in order to show up Samson, Barnum's giant and other imitators. Atlas asked him to hold up the world while he went to spend the week end with some relatives, and Hercules did so without removing his coat or vest or furring anybody off his sphere.

Probably the best thing Hercules ever did was to verify the Augean stables. These were a celebrated dumpy barn which had not been purified to any extent for several thousand years, and the neighbors petitioned the city council to take action. Hercules was hired to do the purifying, and was obliged to run a large river through it and drown a number of innocent milk cows. The Augean stables refused to remain clean, however, and now we do our purifying in a different manner, by electing somebody every four years who will fill the second-class postoffices with new brooms.

Hercules seems to have had trouble with his wife for one day she rubbed poison into his spring suit. When Hercules discovered it he did not apply for a divorce, being pressed for time, but ignited himself and several cords of dry wood at one and the same time with the most flattering success. This method of getting rid of a husband is still used wherever there is any considerable amount of life insurance involved.

NORWAY'S KING IS LOSING HIS POWER

King Hakan VII.

A measure likely to pass, the storthing provides that Norway's king henceforth be merely an ornament. The bill would take away from the king his power of veto and approval of laws. The storthing recently granted women suffrage. Another measure provides that the country become a republic if the present king dies without an heir.

In some way this came to the ears of Mr. Lynch. He gave no sign that he heard.

But the heaven worked. The old friendship of youth reasserted itself. Still he gave no sign.

On Sunday morning James J. Lynch went to church. What he heard there is not on record. Possibly it was the text, "Love your enemies."

At any rate, after church he walked straight to the residence of Thomas Morris. The maid who answered the bell was so amazed at the sight of him that she could scarcely open the door.

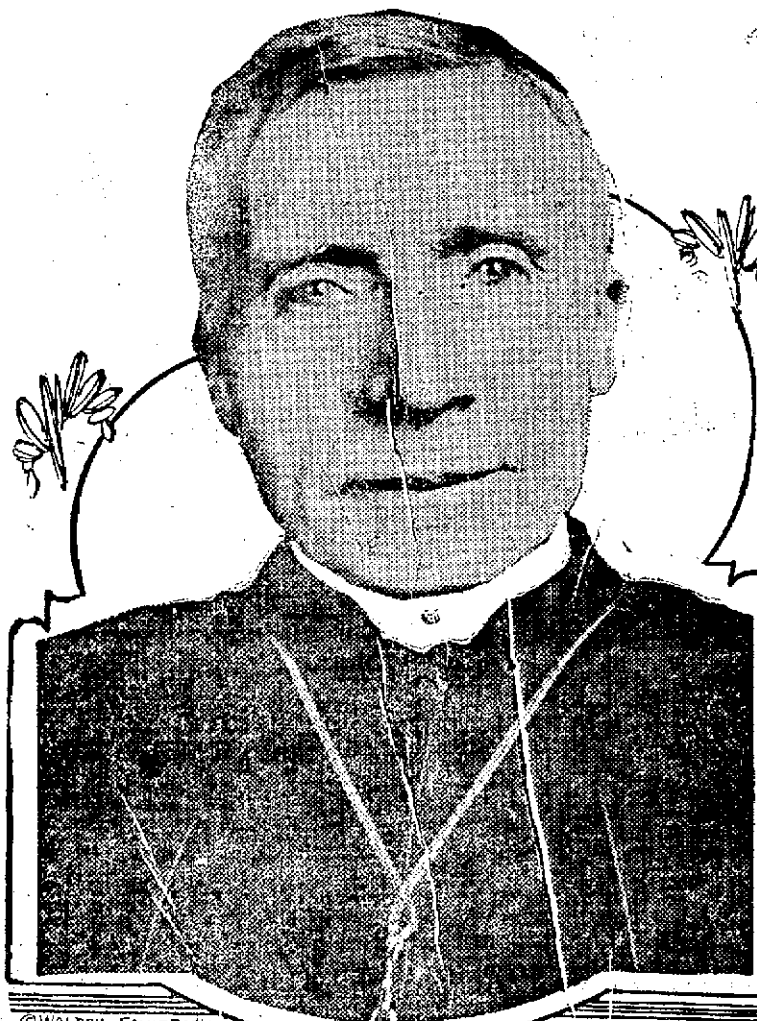

To the physicians in attendance Lynch briefly announced that he had come to furnish the blood the sick men needed. As Mr. Lynch is an athlete, despite his years, a better subject could not have offered.

On entering the room where lay his enemy James J. Lynch spoke no word. Mr. Morris was so low he could not have spoken had he desired. But his eyes held a mute question and wonder as they rested on his foe.

Down on the bed by his side that foe laid himself, the proper incisions were made, and the blood from the strong man soon coursed through the veins of the one at the threshold of death. In a short time the patient showed a pronounced gain in strength and hopes were entertained for his ultimate recovery, but there was a relapse, and death came a few days later. His last hours were sweetened by the knowledge that a bitter enmity had been wiped out.

And what of James J. Lynch? He will in time regain his lost blood and his strength, and he will be stronger in courage, spirit and soul than ever before.

Millions Spent for Soda. Authorities in the drug business estimate the number of soda fountains in use in the United States at not less than 75,000 and they are said to represent an investment of $50,000,000. The annual receipts of these supplies of soft drinks may total $50,000,000.

Fought to Death in Mine. Half a mile underground, in a gallery of a coal mine at Bethune, France, three miners, with their picks, suddenly attacked a fourth, against whom they had a grudge. The man fought desperately, killing one and wounding another before he himself was killed. Other miners sounded the alarm gong of the mine, and the murderers were arrested.

"AVERAGE JONES, ETC."

"There is a rock in the gully that I marked. Nobody else would ever notice it. Under it I hid the jewelry. I can take you to it and I will."

"I got on my coat and took my robe in a creek, and got myself to the railroad station for a morning train. And when I got home I married Irene, and I am through with the crooked work forever."

"This is the whole truth. I did not kill her. I do not know today who or what she is. I have looked in the papers, and there is nothing, and that is so strange that I would think it was all a fearful dream, if it was not for my smashed-up wrist. But if any human being knows more about the death of Astraea, it must be the man who shouted as she fell from the cliff, and who went away and did not come back."

"And may God have no mercy for me if this is not all a true statement so far as I know the truth."

CHAPTER XX
In the White Room

"To Hotel Eyrrie, Martindale Center. Dust 571, and send up seven chairs. Chester Kent."

Now I wonder what that might mean? mused the day-clerk of the Eyrrie, as he read the telegram through for the second time. Convention in the Room of Mystery, maybe?

To satisfy his curiosity, he went up to the room himself. Its white bareness confirmed a suspicion of long standing.

"Any man," he remarked to the scrub woman, "who would pay five dollars for a room just to put nothing at all in it, has sure got a kink in his cogs."

Nor did the personnel of the visitors who, in course of the late afternoon, arrived with requests to be shown to 571, serve to efface this impression. First came the sheriff from Annalake. He was followed by a man who gave the name of Jax, and who declined to identify himself more specifically. While the clerk was endeavoring, with signal lack of success, to give him a room, Lawyer Adam Bain arrived, and, emphatically, coughed for his predecessor as to leave the desk-room no further excuse for obstructive tactics. Shortly afterward Alexander Blair came in, with a woman, heavily veiled, and was deferentially conducted aloft. Finally, Chester Kent himself appeared, accompanied by Sedgewick and a third man, unknown to the clerk, pompously arrayed in frock coat and silk hat, and characterized by a painfully twitching chin.

"Who have come?" Kent asked the clerk.

The functionary ran over the list. "Like like to do with the woman found in Lonesome Cove last week," he essayed hopefully.

Kent glanced out of the window. "It looks like rain," he observed, "and looks like rain. And it looks like a number of things that are anybody's business. Furthermore, I may mention that we shall not need, in 571, ice-water, stationery, casual messages, calling-cards, or any other form of espionage. He favors the willing clerk with a sunny smile and led his companions to the elevator.

Sedgewick put a hand on his arm. "The woman with a rather?" he asked under his breath.

Kent nodded. "I rather hoped that she wouldn't come," he said. "Blair might better have told her—so far as he knows."

"Then he doesn't know all?"

And perhaps she would be content with nothing else. It is her right. And she is a brave woman, is Marjorie Blair, as Jax here can testify. We have seen her under fire."

"She is that," confirmed the man with the twitching chin.

"This, then, is the final clear-up?" asked Sedgewick.

"Final and complete."

"Thank God! It will be a weight off my shoulders."

"Oh, my shoulders," said Kent. "Here we are."

Greetings among the little group, so strangely and harshly thrown together by the dice-cast of the hand of circumstance, were brief and formal. Only Preston Jax was named by Kent, with the comment that his story would be forthcoming. The seven guests entered themselves, the Blairs at one end of the half-circle. Kent, leaning against the wall, fumbled uncertainly at his ear.

"I hardly know where to begin," he said, his eyes roving along the intent line. "Not that the case isn't perfectly clear; but there are certain startling phases which—"

He glanced toward the Blairs.

Marjorie Blair smiled bravely at him. "Don't be alarmed for me, Professor Kent," she said. "What I most want is to have everything cleared up—everything."

"First, your jewels, then."

Kent turned to Preston Jax, who handed him a package. Opening it, Kent displayed the wonderful Grosvenor rose-topazes, with a mischievous look of rings sparkling amid their coils. With a cry, Marjorie caught up the necklace.

"Are all the remainder of the lost valuable there, Mrs. Blair?" asked Kent.

She glanced at the rings. "I think so. Yes. But this is what matters to me."

"These are all that Preston Jax found on the body."

Alexander Blair leaped from his seat, the better to take Preston Jax at the other end of the crescent, under consideration. "It was you who found the body?" he demanded.

"Yes," said the astrologer unhesitatingly.

"Were you alone when you found it?"

"Yes. No. I don't know. There was a man somewhere near. I heard him, but I never saw him."

"Was it Francis Sedgewick with you that night?" pursued Mr. Blair in measured tones.

"I never saw Mr. Sedgewick until today."

There was a little soft sigh of relief from where Marjorie Blair sat.

"That may or may not be true," said Alexander Blair sternly. "It is the word of a man who has robbed a dead body, if, indeed, he did not also kill her."

"Steady, Mr. Blair," broke in Chester Kent. "Perhaps, considering who is present, we would better approach this in a somewhat calmer spirit."

"I don't kill or rob any one."

The words seemed to be jerked out from between Preston Jax's teeth by the spasmodic quiverings of his chin.

"How came you by my daughter's jewels, then, if you did not take them from her?"

"Who ever said I didn't take 'em from the body?" retorted the other. "I did take 'em. But it wasn't robbery. And what I want to know is, how did they come to be on the body?"

"What was that?" asked a woman doing with your daughter's rings and necklace? Tell me that!"

"Wait a moment," put in Kent. "Explain to Mr. Blair, Jax, what your purpose was in taking the jewels."

"To hide 'em," I thought, the less there was on the body to identify it, the better chance I'd have of getting away. I was so scared that I guess I was half crazy, anyway. And now, I hear, she never has been identified. Is that right?"

Sheriff Schlager half rose from his chair. "Ain't you told 'em, Professor Kent?"

"No, you, Mr. Blair?"

"No."

"Then I don't see why we can't keep it amongst ourselves," said the sheriff. "Gossip is right as a clam. Nobody'll ever get anything out of him. And, Lord knows, the less that's known of it the better I'm suited. I ain't none too proud of my part."

There is no reason why it should ever be known outside of this room," said Kent, and, at the words, Alexander Blair exhaled a pent-up breath of relief. But it is due to one person here that she should know everything. The question is how to make it clear in the best and kindest way."

"If it will make it easier for any one here to speak," said Marjorie Blair, "I can say that I understand certain phases of my husband's past life, thoroughly. There is no need to spare me on that ground."

"But this pertains to a phase that you do not understand at all."

"Gently," "This dead woman had some hold over my husband. To maintain it she came to live near Hedgerow House, and while she was blackmailing him, she got into communication with Mr. Jax."

"Perhaps they were in collusion," suggested Lawyer Bain.

"Oh, no!" broke in Alexander Blair impatiently. "You're wide of the mark."

"I understand," persisted the young woman, "that the woman persuaded or compelled Wilfrid to write the letter to Mr. Jax, which she signed Astraea. That, when she went to keep the rendezvous, took the jewels."

"Which, I suppose, she forced poor Wilfrid to steal for her. Am I not right, Professor Kent?"

"No. Far from it."

"Why, then, did Sedgewick eagerly accept them?"

"She certainly had the jewels of when she met me. And the handcuffs must have been in the bundle. I heard them clink."

"Exactly," the handcuffs," said Kent. "What use to you, Captain Jax, of a woman of that sort have for manacles, in those circumstances?"

"Yes," put in Adam Bain: "they fit in about as nice as a pink silk hat at a funeral."

"I know what use she had for 'em," muttered Preston Jax, caressing his wrist. "It's simply a case of crazy woman, isn't it, Professor Kent?"

"Not if you mean that your assailant was a crazy woman," said Kent patiently.

"Then who, in heaven's name, is or was Astraea?" cried Sedgewick.

"Astraea is, I take it, a lady long since dead, a very strange and interesting lady who adopted that name for her own peculiar pursuits along our friend Jax's lines of interest."

"They call themselves all sorts of things," observed the astrologer philosophically. "I had a follower once that used to sign herself Carrie Nation, and she wasn't the real Carrie at all. No name is sacred to 'em when they go dippy over the stars."

"Then the woman of Lonesome Cove borrowed that name from some old record?" asked Sedgewick.

"Follow me through a page of unwritten local history," said Chester Kent, straightening up. "The beginning of this story goes back some seventy-five years, when there lived, not far from Hoggs Haven, in a house of venerable family, a historical figure, Grosvenor, who married into the way, has withheld all this from his pages, a woman of the most extraordinary charm and intellect. Not beautiful in the strict sense of the word, she had a gift beyond beauty, and she led men in chains. Her husband appears to have been a weakling who could for nothing else her life after the birth of her children. Seeking distraction, she flung herself into mysticism and became the priestess of a cult of star-worshippers, which included many of the more cultivated people of this region. Among them was a young German mystic and philosopher, who had fled to this country to escape punishment for political offense. Hermann von Miltz was his name."

"That's why she called me Hermann," broke in Preston, in an awed half-whisper.

"Don't jump to wild conclusions," said Kent smilingly. "Some of their correspondence is still extant. She signed herself Astraea, in handwriting similar to the signature of that note of yours, Jax. There seems to have been no guilt between them, as the law judges guilt. The bond was a mystic one. But it was not a less fatal. It culminated in a tragedy of which the details are lost. Perhaps it was an elopement that they planned perhaps a double suicide, with the idea that their souls would be united in death. There are hints of that in the old letters in the historian's possession and in the library at Hedgerow House. This much is known: The couple embarked together in a small boat. Von Miltz was never again heard of. Camilla Grosvenor's body came ashore in Lonesome Cove. She was the Cove's earliest recorded victim."

The sketch which that mischief-monger, Elder Dennett, left at your door, Sedgewick, supposing it to be likeness of the unfortunate creature he had seen on the road to your house, is a Charles Elliott sketch for the portrait of Camilla Grosvenor.

"My God!" Jax exclaimed, "was it a ghost I met up with that night on Hawk Hill Heights?"

"As near as a ghost as you are ever likely to encounter, probably," answered Kent.

"But, see here," said Adam Bain. "I'm a lawyer. The law doesn't deal with ghosts or near-ghosts. Are you trying to tell us, Professor Kent, that the soul of this long-dead Astraea-Camilla Grosvenor came back to haunt the body of the Jane Doe of Lonesome Cove?"

"Not precisely that, either. Everything, strictly within the limits of the law's cognizance, Mr. Bain, you will see. Now I'm going to make a long jump down to the present. If I fail to keep the trail clear, anywhere, cut me any of you at liberty to interrupt me. First, then, want you to follow with me the strange history that leaves Hedgerow House on the late afternoon of July fifth. By chance, the figure is not seen, except at a distance by Gansett, Jim, who suspected nothing. Otherwise it would have been stopped, as it wears Mrs. Blair's necklace and rings."

"Dressing the part of Astraea," guessed Lawyer Bain.

"Precisely. Our veiled figure, in a dress that is an old one of Mr. Blair's, and with a package in hand, makes its way across country to the coast."

"To join me," said Preston Jax.

"To join you," Chester brings the wayfarer face to face with that gentleman of the peckaboo mind, Elder Dennett. They talk. The stranger, assumed by chance, through the Elder's assumption, to be about the house of Francis Sedgewick, the entrance to Sedgewick's place the pair met. There was a curious encounter, ending in Sedgewick's demanding an explanation of the rose-topazes, which he knew to be Blair's."

"How did he know that?" demanded Alexander Blair.

"Because I had worn them when I said to him," said Marjorie Blair quietly.

"You sat to Sedgewick? For your picture? Why didn't you tell me of this?"

"No explanation was due you. It was a matter of chance, our acquaintance. Mr. Sedgewick did not even know who I was."

"Nor who his other visitor was, I suppose!" said Blair with a savage sneer.

"No," said Sedgewick, "nor do I know of this day."

"The stranger," continued Kent, "refused to give Sedgewick any explanation, and when he threatened to follow him, he fled with a rock, and escaped. Some distance down the road the wayfarer encountered Simon P. Groot, the itinerant merchant. Sedgewick afterward met him and made inquiries, but obtained no satisfaction. He recovered the trail, if he had not murdered in his mind," demanded Blair.

"You are proceeding on the theory that Sedgewick, knowing who Mrs. Blair was, and who the strange visitor for motives of his own. But Sedgewick can prove that he was back in his house by nine o'clock, and we have a witness here who was talking with the wayfarer on the necklaces at that hour. Jax, let us have your statement."

Holding the copy of the confession in his hand, in case of confusion of memory, the Star-master told of his rendezvous of the swift savage attack, of the appalling incident of the marauders, of the wild race across the heights, and of the final tragedy.

"I've thought and wondered and figured day and night," he said, in conclusion, "and I can't get at what that rope and the handcuffs meant."

"The handcuffs must have come from that dreadful collection of Captain Jax's things, in the big hallway at Hedgerow House," said Marjorie Blair.

"Yes," assented Kent, "and the dim clue to their purpose goes back again, fancy, to the strange mysticism of the original Astraea. The disordered mind, with which we have to deal, seems to have been guarding against any such separation as divided in death, Astraea from her Hermann."

"But, Chester," objected Sedgewick, "you speak of a disordered mind, and yet you've told us that it isn't a case of insanity."

"Never," contradicted Kent. "You've misinterpreted what I said. In the early stages of the affair I told you, if you remember, that a very bizarre situation indicated a very bizarre motive. What could be more bizarre than insanity?"

"Was it suicidal insanity, then?" asked Bain.

"Not in the ordinary and intentional sense."

"Then it was the other man that killed her," said Preston Jax. "The man I heard yell, when she went over. But what became of him?"

"Simon P. Groot, too," confirmed Bain. "Have you got any clue to him, Professor Kent?"

"The other man was Francis Sedgewick," declared Alexander Blair doggedly.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

Entering a barber's shop a customer with scanty locks asked for a bottle of hair restorer, with which the assistant promptly supplied him. For a time he persevered in his application of the remedy for missing hair, but this only resulted in raising bumps on his cranium which would have puzzled the most expert phrenologist. In haste he returned to the barber's shop.

"Look here," he exclaimed, excitedly, "what the stuff you sold me in this bottle has done to my head."

Puzzled and perplexed, the barber took the bottle, examined it, then turned to the assistant and fairly roared:

"You blockhead! What you have sold this customer is not hair restorer. It is my patent recipe for bust-developing!"

The lawyer's office was situated on one of the principal streets of the town, and the lawyer was very busy. The countryman who has just come to town was not so busy and had plenty of time to look around. Suddenly, he came to the lawyer's office and seeing nothing but one man at a desk inquired:

"Mister, what yer got to sell in here?"
